

If you're from outside the company, you'd better come up with a good reason for that person also to need this meeting . . .

Okay. Now you're on the calendar. The wheels are in motion. What's next? Designing what you have to say: the content, the order, the pacing. It's also time to figure out the best way to present: what to show, what to tell, and what to leave behind.
